Extreme wakeboarder swaps speedboat for seaplane in insane stunt

 How was 22-year-old Steel Lafferty going to make an impression at Wakecation in Panama with legendary wakeboarders Parks Bonifay and Brian Grubb in attendance? How about getting a seaplane to tow him across the ocean! Let's follow this to its logical conclusion: more powerful planes, longer tow ropes, boarders hitting 200kmh, more injuries, but enough footage to break YouTube. Sounds good to us.

On this week's cover we told you that Queensland model Raquel Petit is the new Megan Gale, and we stand by that. Tall with a striking face and a body made for sporting underwear on the catwalks of Paris and Milan, she does look like the world-famous Aussie glamazon. Problem is, getting hold of her on the phone is about as difficult as cold-calling Megan Gale herself. So here's what we could find out about Raquel without speaking to her in person...

● She's Australian, but also has French, Dutch and Indonesian blood, which explains her exotic looks. And possibly her ability to speak French, Dutch and Indonesian, but we can't be sure about that last part.

● She's done a hell of a lot of modelling, including work for big brands like Monster Energy, Jim Beam, Harley-Davidson, Wild Orchid swimwear and the Hard Rock Café. Raquel's also done a lot of catwalk work. We can't find any Victoria's Secret shoots on her resumé, but with a rig like hers, surely it's only a matter of time.

● She's tall, as in netball tall. Raquel is five feet 10 in the old money, which puts her in good company with other tall hotties like Megan (of course), Vic Secret model Alessandra Ambrosio, Nicole Kidman, Famke Janssen and Taylor Swift.

● She practically lives in a bikini. Trust us, we looked everywhere on the internet and trying to come across a photo of her in anything other than swimwear is like trying to find a Sex and the City fan down a mine in Kalgoorlie. Have a look at her Twitter and Instagram and you'll see what we mean. These are some seriously skimpy bikinis we're talking about, too. Some of them don't have enough fabric to make a pair of tennis socks for Tyrion, the midget off Game of Thrones.

● She should have way more than 76,000 followers on Instagram. Trust us, if you're the sort of bloke who needs a regular pick-me-up in the form of a photo of a 10/10 stunner in a barely-there bikini, you won't do much better than her account. And you've got more than 3000 posts to catch up on...

Tatt wizards give custom ride a one-of-a-kind paint job with their ink guns

 Motorbikes and tattoos have always gone together like drunk blokes and divvy vans, but they've never been combined like this before.

Polish custom bike builder Game Over Cycles came up with the idea about 10 years ago. The aim was to not only make a bike with actual tats on it, but to build something that looked a bit like a tattoo gun, as well.

The result is partly covered in cowhide coloured to look like human skin, making it the perfect canvas for two tatt artists to work on. They did outstanding work not just on the fuel tank, tyres and seat, but also on bits that can't be easily seen, like elements that are inside the components. It took them a staggering 250 hours to pull off.

The bike's mechanicals are tatt-themed, too. The front suspension and exhaust pipe are made to look like parts from tattoo guns, complete with moving needles.

The only way it could be more authentic is if they made the licence plate from skin and put a tramp stamp on it.

A close-up portrait of actor Will Ferrell. He is looking directly at the camera with a neutral, slightly serious expression. He has short, wavy brown hair and light-colored eyes. He is wearing a brown cord jacket over a green and white checkered button-down shirt. He is holding a black rectangular sign with both hands in front of his chest. The sign has white text that reads: "IN THE ZOO WITH WILL FERRELL AND KEVIN HART 3R60 79 5660". The background is a plain, light-colored wall with a horizontal black stripe across the middle.

ZOO chats to the Get Hard stars about jail time, eating ears and losing arms...

G'day, fellas. What was it like working together?

Will: Kevin was difficult to work with.

Kevin: You son of a bitch!

Did you spend any time with prisoners for research?

Will: I've been incarcerated many times. Mostly for bike tickets. And I robbed one bank.

Kevin: Just one?

Will: One bank. That got nasty.

Because you were on a bike at the time, that was the problem?

Will: Yeah, that's right, that's why. No, we shot in a jail one day, I think it was just me.

Kevin: It was just you.

Will: It was just me, and you just realise it's a horrible environment, which is the premise for this movie. What would an upper-middle-class to upper-class person do when thrown into that situation? What goes through your mind as to how you'd survive? You'd either try to flee the country, change your appearance or learn to survive in that world, which is how we got the idea for this.

Kevin: I went to jail. You've never been to jail. I got arrested. Somebody sold my brother a plated car. A plated car is when they basically take all of the stickers off of an original car, buy a car of that same model and put those stickers and serial numbers on them and sell it as a newer car than what it is. He didn't have any idea but I was driving the car. It was when I first got my licence, I was like 17. Because I was so young-looking — I looked like somebody's kid in a stolen car, like a 12-year-old — I don't think I've ever looked more guilty in my life. I remember the cop just looking at me. He made a U-turn, I'm like sticking my head out the window. He pulled me over and said the car is stolen. I was like, "No it's not, it can't be, it's my brother's car." He took me to jail and I was in jail for about eight hours. I just started doing push-ups. In the cell I literally just started doing push-ups. I just did 'em. I just kept doing 'em. This lily-white guy in there with me never said anything but I was like, "Just in case, he should know that I can do a lot of push-ups".

Will: Similar story — I was in jail in the movie Elf.

Kevin: That's not the same, Will. Acting is not the same thing.

Will: Alright. It felt real.

You each have your own individual comedy styles but you're also very good in comedy duos. How easy is it to find a groove in a new partnership?

Will: Well, I think it's easy for Kevin and I because we appreciate the ensemble. As much as we enjoy making people laugh, we love to laugh ourselves. The first time we kind of met it was a really good goal to make the other guy laugh. So there really isn't a competition as to who's getting more of the funny lines. There was never a day on set where we're like, "Kevin was so much funnier today than I was". It was just about, "That's going to be a great scene regardless of who is more of the straight man or not." So when you have that going in it's just about the betterment of the project and then it's easy be strong together as a duo.

Kevin: It's seamless and I really think that your star has to set the tone, and that's what Will did. Will is the star of Get Hard — I'm his co-star in this film. You know, it wasn't a thing where he said, say? What'd he just say he's gonna do? No way! Slow down, Will. Come on, man."

Is the movie good at having a sly dig at racism in the States?

Kevin: We are talking and approaching the stereotypes that have been out for so long. We're taking those two worlds and we're addressing them in such a clever way to make people laugh at themselves. I think those that really fit the build of these two characters will have to take a look at themselves and realise, "Oh my god, this is kind of ridiculous to think that way. Until you know and understand the person, you shouldn't judge a person." And in this film you're looking at two people who judge the other just because of the situation they're in. It's not just the colour of their skin, it's who they are, who they're around. After picking those pieces apart you go, "Wow, underneath the shell of a person I thought you were, you're a good person."

Will: Good lord, I'm just mesmerised right now. I got lost in your eyes.

"I've been incarcerated many times. Mostly for bike tickets. And I robbed one bank."

"I'm better than you Kevin, you stay over here and I'll stay over here".

Will: That having been said, I did have Kevin's trailer downsized at one point. It's a third of the size of my trailer.

Kevin: And he came into my trailer and said, "What is this?"

Will: We put him in a Porta Potty. And then I felt terrible and we switched it back.

Who's harder out of the two of you?

Kevin: I think Will has the crazy gene.

Will: No, that's how I have to survive, just act totally crazy.

Kevin: I don't think he'd be acting. I think he'd be the guy who doesn't want to stop fighting — the fight eventually is over at some point and Will would be like, "You better keep going until somebody dies!"

Will: I think I could convince myself to bite someone's ear off.

Kevin: I can see it, I can see it.

Will: It's like a tendon in a chicken bone... just bite through it!

Kevin: I can literally see Will saying some weird shit like, "I'm gonna take your spine out your ass." "What'd he

What's your take on that?

Will: I totally disagree with what Kevin just said ... No, it's the most fun to get to make a movie like this. Obviously the goal first and foremost is just to make people laugh, but at the same time you kind of weave in a little bit of satirical commentary along the way, where you're laughing but you're kind of going, "That perception is true." To hopefully accomplish both things would be great.

So if we were going to jail this weekend what would be your tips?

Kevin: First and foremost, I wouldn't go into prison looking like a well-kept individual, you got a rough yourself up. Go outside, put your face on the pavement and you got to scrape your face back and forth — you gotta rough it up. Also, cut the middle of your hair off, but keep the sides.

Will: Represent yourself in court.

Kevin: If there's a way where you can lose one arm, I think that would be good. Nobody wants to fight someone in jail that only has one arm.

Great leaps forward in killing people!

Military tech is going berserk, and we've got the proof.
At this rate, someone will build a Death Star by October

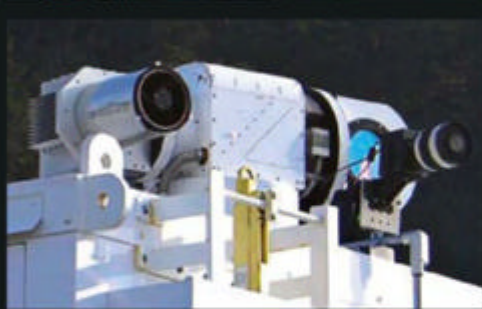

And this time, no stupid exhaust vent, please

UNCLE SAM'S NEW TRUCK-SMASHING SUPER LASER

The above photo is what a pickup truck looks like after it's been hit by the US military's new laser beam — from 1.6km away! Lockheed's ATHENA weapon (that's Advanced Test High Energy Asset) burned a hole through the engine, disabling the vehicle with pinpoint accuracy. It was aimed by a soldier using an Xbox controller, and the company wants to mount it on vehicles including ships and front-line assault trucks like the Hummer.

THE GUN THAT SHOOTS AROUND CORNERS

When cops in China need to shoot some dude for saying the word “democracy” out loud, they no longer have to risk their lives by sticking their heads around a blind corner. Their new bendable guns come with a video screen so they can see the suspect without exposing themselves to fire, then put a bullet in his head. The front part of the gun comes with a 9mm pistol mounted in it, and the firing’s done via a radio signal that comes from the trigger.

COMING TO THE AUSSIE AIR FORCE!

HELMET GIVES TOP GUNS EYES IN THE BACK OF THEIR HEAD

When the RAAF gets the next-gen F35 fighter, it’ll come with some sweet headgear for the pilots. The $770,000-a-pop helmets turn the visor into a display screen that works a lot like the set-up Iron Man rocks in the movies.

It lets them bring up a 360-degree view so they can see what’s behind them without turning their heads, and even make the plane transparent so they can see through the floor in case an enemy plane is lurking below.

DUMBEST THINGS

rappers have blown cash on

And we thought Tony Abbott's salary was a giant waste of money...

SEAN KINGSTON'S $600,000 CRAYON BOX JEWELLERY

THE BUY: A replica crayon box made of white gold, diamonds and rubies.

THE BOTTOM LINE: Uglier than a hatful of arseholes and a lot more expensive. Was it for a bet? If it was, what did he win — free supermodels for a year? This is the sort of thing Michael Jackson might have worn on an off-day. But fate intervened when Sean's sister sent it by post for repair — it went missing and she'd only insured it for $500. He didn't get another one made.

BIRDMAN'S $1 MILLION GOLD TOILET

THE BUY: Seat and cover, solid gold. The rest's just gold-plated. Cheapskate.
THE BOTTOM LINE: Hip-hop label tycoon Bryan Williams, aka Birdbrai... Birdman, can't be accused of flushing his money down the drain, though splashing it about takes on a whole new meaning. "Gold on everythang," he tweeted alongside pics of his costly commode. Everythang? Gold on your Vegemite toast? Gold on your dagwood dog? Gold on your pie floater? And why make money just so he can literally take a dump on it? Would he lay a cable on top of his car?

THE GAME'S $110,000 DIAMOND TOY CAR

THE BUY: Mr Game's jeweller put 150 carats ($98,376) of diamonds on Game Jr's remote-controlled Bentley.

THE BOTTOM LINE: That could make show and tell awkward at school if he ever takes it in. He'd have to lie and say they're fakes because who would blow $100k — more than what 90 per cent of Aussies earn in a year — on blinging up their kid's toy car? Given all that weight, the motor's probably already given up in a puff of smoke. Go the extra step and buy him a lion, why don't ya.

KANYE WEST'S $420,000 SISTINE CHAPEL REPLICA

THE BUY: A version of Michelangelo's Sistine Chapel painting on the ceiling of his dining room.

THE BOTTOM LINE: It's supposed to depict the car crash that almost killed him. And yes, that is Kanye as an angel, proving Mr Kim Kardashian likes nothing more than the thought of himself on the right hand of God. Or even better, muscling God out so he can take His place as ruler of the universe, have a son with Kimmy and call the little bloke "Yeezus Christ".

T-PAIN'S $490,000 BIG ASS CHAIN

THE BUY: Look at what's around his neck.

THE BOTTOM LINE: Let's do the numbers — 197 carats, four kilos and one idea so stupid it could only have been found at the bottom of a five-litre bottle of bourbon. Mind you, when Mr Pain bought this he owned 32 cars and his five-year-old kid had a $4 million fortune, so he could afford it. Maybe Nicki Minaj will buy it so she can hang it off the back of her jeans...

TYGA'S $20,000 EGYPTIAN TOMB

THE BUY: A tomb from Egypt... and Egyptian sand.

THE BOTTOM LINE: The gear's to fit-out his LA clothing store, but importing sand when you're 15km from the beach seems... excessive. Surely he could just have said it was from Egypt and no-one would have known? That's what happens when you pull in over $50k per night on tour. Next thing you know, he'll buy the Barrier Reef and move it to his back garden.

Too fast for James Bond!

Not even 007 can have Aston Martin's new Vulcan hypercar: it's a track-only 600kW beast for the man who's got a spare $3 million lying around

Two dozen Vulcans — and not a pointy ear in sight — will roll off the production line to join McLaren's P1 GTR and LaFerrari's FXX K as the ultimate rich man's toy: a track-only V12 monster with more grunt than Godzilla.

The power-to-weight ratio's been juiced by teaming a seven-litre V12 engine with carbon fibre for a minimum 600kW and 320kmh. Aston says the power-to-weight ratio is even better than that of the cars in the World Endurance Championship.

Anyone who can stump up $3m will have training from professional racers thrown in, and the company will deliver it to the track for them 'cos it's too fast to be street-legal.

HOW TO USE YOUR NEW APPLE WATCH

IT'LL READ YOUR HEART RATE AND UPDATE YOUR
FACEBOOK SO
EVERYONE KNOWS WHEN YOU'RE CHEATING
ON YOUR MISSUS
OR WANKING

Apple is releasing the Apple Watch in late April. It's the newest piece of brain-softening hardware in their ever-expanding arsenal of anti-friendship technology. Here are some amazing things you can do with it...

- So long as it's within the 18 hours of battery life, you can set an alarm for any time, day or night (well, some of the night).

- If you don't know what time it is, you can use your Apple watch to locate your phone and then check the time on the phone screen, like a normal person.

- Read messages on your Apple Watch while you're driving, and if a cop pulls you over, you can explain that you were just checking to see if it was school-zone hours.

- Verbally update your Twitter feed: "Just hit three kids driving through a school zone... 30 points lol! #CarPoolLane".

- Get regular updates on how close humans are to having actual awesome technology like hoverboards and hoverboards with inbuilt vaginas.

- By measuring your heart rate, the Apple Watch will automatically update your Facebook status so everyone knows when you're jogging, cheating on your girlfriend or masturbating in the work toilet.

- Potential muggers will see your Apple watch, assume you also own an iPhone, iPad and Macbook, and take pity on you because they too have struggled with addiction.

- Sweet party trick: hide the watch in your arse and then play the Pulp Fiction "Your daddy hid this watch in his ass" scene on the watch while it's in your arse.

- Connect with other nearby Apple Watches via Bluetooth and send finger sketches to each other. Use the same level of technology that Obama uses for drone strikes to carpet-bomb cock 'n' balls pics to your friends.

- Soon everything will have Apple technology in it. Your keys will have a phone in them so you can call them if they're lost. Any number of other things that are often hard to find will soon be Appled: iSunglasses, iCarpark tickets, iISIS death cult leaders.

- Apple Watch colour technology can work out if that dress is blue and black. It can also tell if you're either a worthless gossip sponge or a vacuous über-prick.

- Coolest thing is you can answer a phone call on your watch and pretend you're Dick Tracy. You can do other cool things that Dick Tracy did in the 1940s, like hit women. (Don't hit women, or the Apple Watch will read your heart rate and update "just back-handed the missus" to Facey.)

CALL OF DUTY

TALK IT UP: UK-based Team Apex were finalists at the 2011 COD: XP tournament. They say multiplayer gets a shedload easier if you and your teammates use in-game chat to call out whenever an enemy is spotted and let everyone know their position.

PREPARE CAREFULLY: Before you play multiplayer with a team, develop a strategy — say, broadly, playing defensively or aggressively — and make sure everyone knows their role in it.

AIM IS EVERYTHING: Use rounds of Search and Destroy to improve your aim, as it forces you to react quickly.

MAKE YOUR MISTAKES

COUNT: Use the Theatre function to go back and have a look at what got you killed. It's not much fun but it will help you avoid falling into the same traps.

LEARN YOUR MAPS: It'll

take a while, but once you know everything about an area you can predict paths enemies will take, vantage points for snipers, where to find the best cover, etc.

DON'T STAND STILL:

Pro gamer Clay Eubanks advises that you never "camp" in COD. "To be successful you've got to be constantly moving and be aggressive on the map," he reckons. Kill and move is the key; if you've shot someone dead, be sure that someone else will see it and come after you. Dish it out, then get the f**k out of Dodge.

KILLS AREN'T

EVERYTHING: If you want to get your points up in COD: Ghosts, go for the objective, not the kills. It's a good, quick way of levelling up.

LEARN FROM THE KINGS:

Watch the experts on gameplay vids to get an idea of the level of skill you're aiming for.

∞ PICK THE RIGHT TEAM: Professional gamers Ty Walton and David Bytheway recommend either Real Madrid (for lovers of fast counter-attack) or Bayern Munich (for defensive strength and crossing to score goals) for FIFA 14.

∞ HOW TO BEAT THROUGH-BALLS: It's tough, but try leaving a defender back deep so if your opponent latches onto a good through ball, he's not one-on-one with the goalie. If all else fails, rush your goalie off the line to cut down on their shooting time.

∞ LEARN THE SKILL MOVES: A lot of the moves in FIFA are just eye candy, but the step-over will clear defenders from you and buy you time to shoot on goal. Others worth getting down pat are the scoop turn and McGeady spin.

∞ FORMATION: The consensus among pro gamers is that the 4-2-3-1 formation is best, with a great balance between attack and defence. If you get a good lead, try switching formations so you have five defenders on the pitch.

∞ JUST BEFORE THE KICK-OFF: Pressing left twice on the D-pad just before the whistle puts your side in a defensive frame of mind and makes it harder for your opponent to kill you with counterattacks.

∞ PENALTY! Put the goalie off by timing your shot so the marker is in the green area, then hold up for a few seconds and the ball should go straight through his hands.

∞ MAKE IT TOUGH ON YOURSELF: Don't waste your practice time playing against people you can beat. Always seek out better players than yourself and you'll learn far faster. Just don't get so pissed off that you smash your controller when you keep losing 12-1.

GRAN TURISMO 6

∞ GET A GOOD WHEEL: We can't stress this one strongly enough; a good set-up with force feedback will let you feel exactly when you're getting to the edge of your car's grip. A controller is crap by comparison.

∞ USE TIPS FROM REAL RACE DRIVERS: GT is so accurate in its physics that real-world tricks of the trade work just as well in the game. For example, when cornering, favour your outside hand, because it's far better for giving you feedback through the steering wheel (as in if you're turning left, rely on your right hand, and vice versa). You'll get a far better feel for when you're about to break traction with the tarmac.

∞ IT'S A THROTTLE, NOT A LIGHT SWITCH: The loud pedal shouldn't be either smashed into the floor or stepped off entirely. Feed the power on gently when coming out of corners, especially slow ones. Sync it with the steering wheel; the straighter your front tyres are, the more power you feed on.

∞ GRADUATE TO MANUAL GEARING: Auto shifting is fine for newbies, but if you want the big trophies and best cars, manual is the way to go. You can more effectively use the gears to slow the car, and if you make a mistake it's easier to correct if you've mastered the gearbox instead of letting the computer do all the work. Concentrate on keeping your revs high in corners so you can blast out of them quicker.

∞ SET HER UP LIKE A RACE MECHANIC: GT6 gives you so many set-up options it isn't funny. Most are relatively straightforward but some — like suspension settings and gear ratios — are complicated as. If you're on a track where you can't reach your ride's top speed, consider tightening the ratios so you accelerate harder. On a track like the Nordschleife, with its mega straight, make the ratios taller so your top speed goes up.

∞ GET A GRIP: If your front tyres aren't getting enough purchase, go into the settings and try dropping the ride height at the front and increasing it at the rear. That'll change the car's centre of gravity and put more weight on the front hoops.

FORZA HORIZON 2

∞ DON'T GO EASY ON YOURSELF:

You'll get more dollars if you can hack harder difficulty settings. That doesn't mean you should jump straight into Insane mode, but don't stay at the bottom level for long. Bonuses are as follows: medium's five per cent, hard's 15 per cent, and Insane's 25. Turn off Rewind for a 20 per cent boost, too.

∞ CHALLENGE EVERYONE:

Keep throwing down the gauntlet to real racers online, and also to Drivatars (computer-controlled cars that drive like real-life racers). Check their difficulty settings and try not to go for anyone below medium, which gets you a nice wad of money.

∞ CHAIN IT: If you can string together Skill Chains during a race you'll go through the levels quicker and get more XP. It's not always easy to get air in your car and survive a few near misses, but the rewards are well worth it.

∞ DON'T BE AFRAID TO LEAVE THE ROAD:

Unlike its predecessors, there are a fair few short cuts in Horizon 2, so if your racing line's pointing you into a field, have a crack. If you don't hit a rock that's hidden by high grass as you came in at 240kmh, you'll make up a huge amount of time.

DYING LIGHT

∞ LOOK DOWN! Just because you put a zombie on the ground doesn't mean it can't still do you in. If you didn't see XP when you put one down, it's not dead, and it can still latch onto you and sink their teeth in. Either head-shot them into oblivion while they're down, or go for the throat with a blade. Which leads us neatly to...

∞ CONSERVE AMMO: Do it any way you can. If you get a zombie one-on-one, try using a blade. Always watch out for gas canisters; one bullet into those can take out more than one of the infected.

∞ HIDE AND CLIMB: Demolishers can't get into nooks and crannies, so use small spaces wisely. And Goons and Biters can't climb for shit, so getting elevated is the go for them.

∞ DARKNESS ISN'T YOUR FRIEND:

Not to begin with, anyway. You can reset the day/night cycle at any bed, giving you another 64 minutes of daylight. You can totally avoid playing at night unless the game throws you into the dark at the end of a mission, or gives you a mission that can only be done at night.

∞ FOLLOW THE BLUEPRINTS:

Always use them to increase the stopping power of your weapons, then go right ahead and get medieval on the infected.

∞ XP, XP AND MORE XP:

To build it up fast, do as many side quests as you can. And once you've built up your Agility and Survivor ranks, operate at night if you can hack it. It's a great way of building XP quickly.

∞ LEVEL UP FAST:

When you start, unlock the safe houses. There's rarely more than a couple of infected to take care of, you get XP and it opens up shops.

∞ GIVE ZOMBIES A MISS:

Yeah, it's fun to take them out, but a better strategy is avoiding them by running in the streets. It's not that difficult, and you'll get better gear when you do the story missions and fight Rai's men.

∞ FIND THOSE BARNs:

They hide some pretty sweet historical rides, like a Ferrari 288 GTO, Alfa Romeo Giulia TZ2 and Lamborghini Miura P400. Check online and you can easily find a guide to the locations of all the barns in the game.

∞ HIT THE BOARDS: XP boards are white and well worth finding and smashing your way through. There are 100 of them in the game, with a few worth 15,000 XP. They can be challenging to hit — like one that you have to jump your car through a window to get to — but if you want to level up, man up and bash into them.

∞ TALK AIN'T CHEAP: Stay in communication with your team, call out where waypoints are, let everyone know your location, and when you can access your equipment and abilities.

∞ GET HIGH: Some Hunters are more easily beaten if you can get to an elevated position. Mastering the jet pack — which can be a bit of a prick to operate — is a big help here. Once you get up, drop down if you need to heal, cloak or use other abilities.

∞ DON'T ROCK OUT TOO EARLY: Playing as the Goliath

Monster? Don't sling boulders straight off the bat; hold the Rock Throw move for a second or two and hopefully the Hunters will be sucked into using their jet packs, making them easier to hit.

∞ DON'T CRAP IN YOUR OWN NEST: If you're the Monster in a Nest match, hatch damaged eggs, as this will spawn a full-health minion that'll start damaging the Hunters straight away. If you're on the Hunter side, split up to take out eggs faster, and pretend to attack an egg if there's an early-stage Monster about. It's a good way of drawing it into an ambush with mines or traps.

∞ HUNT MODE: Hunters should divide their team while on a Hunt, and further shrink the area they have to search by using Griffin's sound spikes near choke points. On the other hand, Monsters should look at playing as the Wraith due to its speed and abduction and decoy tricks, which you can use to separate a Hunter from the group. Also, try to avoid combat until you hit Stage three, and use Sneak wherever possible to avoid leaving tracks.

SEDUCTION TIPS

If you want advice on how to pull, you'd best get it from the guys who are paid for sex

BRISSIE BLOKE GETS $250 AN HOUR!

Pommy bloke Steve — who also goes by the name “Arro” — started escorting in 2012 in the UK to make cash to come Down Under. And after getting paid by eight women in 23 days, he had enough for his ticket to Brisbane, plus a break in Thailand and some leftovers to put in his savings account.

“It is work but it’s not really work,” he told the Courier-Mail. “They pay for all the drinks, the food, and you’re trying to get to know them. Ultimately, you want to have a friendship at the end ... But one client became a stalker. She sent me 50 messages over Facebook, email and text. I felt compelled to reply to them for a while, then it just got too much. Apart from that everybody has been really nice.”

Steve’s rates start at $250 an hour and he’s got clients who are in their 30s to their 50s. “Some people look for an escort because they don’t have time to find a relationship, or have been in a long-term relationships and are free from it and want a fun night out. A lot of people have got very little confidence in themselves.”

And his advice to guys is: “Women want to have a good time. They want fun, conversation and to have a laugh. Be a gentleman. It’s always nice to pull a chair out for somebody.”

But Steve has a rule: no rooting. “I’m always first date rules — there’s no holding hands or kissing, no arms around each other. I’m paid for conversation.” So it’s oral but not oral, then.

“RISKING REJECTION IS THE BEST METHOD”

With a name like Vin Armani, this 35-year-old’s career choices were limited to action movies or the escort business — though he refers to himself as a “professional dater”.

“Even as a teenager, I had girlfriends buying me clothes and jewellery, paying for expensive meals and trips, letting me drive their cars, and live in their homes,” he told Details magazine. “I have been implicitly compensated by women for my company —and therefore a ‘gigolo’— for almost as long as I have been enjoying the company of women.”

What’s his job involve? “I’m awesome in bed, but I’m a master of interacting with women so they actually want to be in that bed with me. That interaction is what I’m paid for.”

What’s he learned about chicks? “Women are as much sexual creatures as men ... and women are rooting for you ... If a woman agrees to go out with a guy, she is hoping in the back of her mind that he is wonderful and charming and sexy. She is hoping that by the end of the night he has aroused her so much that she simply can’t help but drag him into the bedroom.”

Anything else? “Honesty and a willingness to risk rejection is actually the most effective method for seducing women.”

“IT’S EASIER TO GET STARTED THAN YOU’D IMAGINE”

Luke Jackson is a 29-year-old college graduate who charges $500 for a short meeting and $3000 for a day. So how did the 190cm Yank get started? “A friend who put herself through grad school as a high-end escort suggested I try it. I was coming out of a long-term relationship ... I put a website together over the weekend, got listed and started talking on the forums until I had women contact me. It was a lot easier than you’d imagine.”

But how does he perform when he doesn’t fancy the client? “It’s just about focusing on the part of who they are that you like, and on being turned on by them being turned on. It’s not usually an issue, which is maybe why I can do what I do. But I also always make it clear that you’re not hiring me for sex, you’re hiring me for my time.”

Are there any tricks of the trade? “It’s certainly taught me a great deal about the wide differences between women in terms of what they enjoy, how they orgasm, what feels good. It’s truly unique to each person, so it’s not really about tricks, it’s about being responsive and observant, and communicating well.”

What do you need to make it? “An open mind, empathy, sexual performance and fitness, an eye for marketing yourself tactfully, and the intelligence to connect with smart, successful clients.”

JAPANESE MAN-GEISHAS GET $200,000 A THROW!

Japanese male host clubs are places cashed-up women go to buy drinks for attentive young men who’ll make them feel special and desirable, with the very best earning up to $200k a night.

That’s the kind of sum pocketed by Hikaru Aizawa (pictured, left) who explains: “I used to be a salesman at bridal and funeral events. I learned how to sell myself. When I became a host I did the same thing to women.”

His home is stuffed with presents from his clients, such as $50,000 watches and a $7000 bottle of Korean grog.

Interviewed by the ABC, a host club male geisha said,

“I have always treated my customers with due respect and hope for their happiness. The most expensive present I ever received from a client was a Mercedes-Benz, and I was also given a parcel of land.”

And the club rules have wisdom: “Never ask a client her age, job, religion or marital status. Smiles are carefully crafted. Bowing techniques practiced and perfected — the right angle is crucial.”

Nice work if you can get it, according to one host: “I can never say no to a woman. The customers who sit at my table are gods. No matter how much sake is poured, I cannot refuse and must drink it all up.”

AMERICA'S FIRST LEGAL GIGOLO

An ex-Marine named Markus became the first legal male prostitute in the US when the 25-year-old was taken on at Nevada's Shady Lady Ranch. But don't call him a prostitute: "You're a surrogate lover. You encompass everything that's required of you — not only emotionally, physically, but psychologically. Because women are wired differently."

How will his clients feel afterwards? "Much more empowered and confident. I'm an equal-opportunity employer. I don't discriminate based on race, colour, creed, ethnicity, or skin tone."

And what attributes does a potential gigolo need? "He must have the heart of a saint, the mind of a philosopher, and the skills of the devil. The third one is I never refer to any woman as a bitch, ho, twat, c**t, or any of those terms ... A gigolo knows how to cook, clean, and do the things necessary to upkeep himself."

"I think a gigolo should have no relations outside of the brothel because it's his playground. Through engaging with a female, he's actually rewarding himself in a way he's never been rewarded before. It's a very beautiful, almost holy experience. I'm changing the way people think."

"IT'S ALWAYS ABOUT HER, NEVER ABOUT ME"

Jeremy is a 38-year-old gigolo whose clients are all 50 and over. Luckily, Jeremy's into mature women. He explains why he's good at his job...

"I think the most important thing is that I am attentive. I pay attention to what the woman I'm with is saying as well as what her body language is saying. I think sometimes the body language is far more honest than the words."

"I compliment her often. I make her feel special. It's always about her, never about me. I'm not the kind of guy who struts around drawing the attention. I make sure she gets it."

"I believe I should present myself well. I dress nicely — never in jeans, my nails are clean and manicured. I speak softly, but confidently. I'm always a gentlemen, although in the bedroom I am sometimes asked to be otherwise... I spend a lot of time looking at her eyes, rather than her other features. I try to look at her and think what she must have looked like when she was seventeen — instead of 55 or 60. I try to rekindle that feeling of youth that lies dormant in most mature women."

And when he gets into bed with them: "I ask her to be honest with me and tell me her sexual fantasies. I nod approvingly at everything she says. I tell her how sexy she looks and how she really turns me on. You'd be surprised how often I hear that the men they know rarely do this."

Sex, drugs & parole

UK stunner Jenny Laird was jailed for selling coke. Now the UK uber-babe is back doing what she does best: getting out of her clothes!

GET THE APP!

M arch 30, 2011, was a black day for British modelling

— and for anyone who likes looking at chicks who are so hot they could even make Bronwyn Bishop's wardrobe look sexy. That's the day the amazing Jenny Laird was jailed for her part in a drug-dealing ring that, in the words of one Pom newspaper, "flooded a town with cannabis, cocaine and amphetamines".

Jen — who was just 22 at the time — got three years and four months in the slammer for conspiracy to supply blow and weed. A detective who helped bust the gang said Jenny and a couple of other models were moving and selling the drugs in pubs, and that they spent their money on living the "champagne lifestyle". ZOO guesses they also ended up spending some of it on very, very expensive lawyers.

We won't dwell on her time in jail. Anyone who's seen lesbian pornos like Jailhouse Nurses will have a fair idea what that was like.

After serving only a small part of her sentence, Jenny was paroled in July 2012. We'll take a wild guess and say it's because she was a model prisoner! We're here all week. Try the veal.

As soon as she got out, Jenny started doing community service. Not because it's a condition of her parole, but because she got straight back into modelling. And any time someone as hot as her takes their clothes off, they're helping the community in many ways.

And in Jen's case, it's pretty obvious that she's helping the men of Britain reduce their Viagra bills and take their minds off how ugly their wives are.

THE UFC'S RONDA ROUSEY VS BLOKES

Seven things that definitely WON'T happen in the NRL this year

... and just for a change, NSW winning Origin isn't one of them

1 A TEAM GOES THROUGH UNDEFEATED

At the end of just round two, there were only four teams with no losses. The closest any NRL side came to an undefeated season was Manly's 1995 campaign, which kicked off with 15 wins. And the last Aussie league team to keep a clean slate all year was St George waaaay back in 1959, when there were only 18 regular-season games, no State of Origin and a more uneven level of competition. So while Souths made a pre-season pact to try to win every match in 2015, they haven't got a snowflake's chance in Hell of living up to it.

2 MANLY MAKE THE GRAND FINAL

Sea Eagles fans, you might want to skip this bit. While their win over the Storm in round two proved that the Brookie boys are still formidable on their day, they're definitely on the downswing compared to the outfit that almost won it all in 2013. It's not just the loss of gun players like Anthony Watmough and Glenn Stewart; the club's as dysfunctional as the Palmer United Party right now, with off-field distractions galore. Which brings us to our next point...

3 SOMEONE AT MANLY TELLS TOOVS WHAT'S REALLY GOING ON

Poor Geoff. Every weekend he yells so much it's a miracle he doesn't start bleeding from the eyes. Yet he found out Manly withdrew its offer to Daly Cherry-Evans from the host of a TV show he was appearing on. There are consistent rumours his bosses are chasing Parra's Brad Arthur to replace him. At this rate, Toovs will find out he's been sacked when he turns up to work and someone else's name is on the door of his office.

4 LUKE KEARY PLAYS FOR NSW

Josh Reynolds' busted arm in week one plus the great early-season form of the Souths five-eighth has led to speculation that he'll take over the Blues' No.6 jersey. ZOO calls bullshit on that. Even though he's eligible, he's Ipswich through and through and idolised Allan Langer, not Laurie Daley, as a kid. Also, the bloke's the size of a prop forward's leg, and NSW have a history of favouring proven defenders. Keary's got skill and pace to burn, but the Maroons would back themselves to run through him like he was made of fairy floss.

5 TODD CARNEY FAILS TO GET AN NRL CONTRACT

He's won his unfair dismissal case against the Sharks, and even though he was punted for taking the second-stupidest photo in NRL history — just behind that dog photo — boards and coaches have the memory of a goldfish when it comes to a controversial player of Carney's ability. He could've fire-bombed an orphanage and teams would still chase him. Geoff Toovey's admitted Manly are keen, and any contract can always have a clause forbidding him from using his mouth as a urinal. Wonder if you can be drug-tested for drinking your own wee...

6 NEIL HENRY AVOIDS PSYCHOLOGICAL COUNSELLING

If there's one bloke in the comp who deserves a lot of sympathy and free antidepressants, it's Henry. The cocaine scandal was bad enough; the NRL taking over the Gold Coast club, in the long term, is even worse. The thrashing by Penrith showed the huge gulf between the Titans and the league's power teams, and even when Greg Bird and Dave Taylor are back, it's hard to see it getting much better when the club's future is up in the air. Cherry-Evans is a huge pick-up, but other stars will shy away when the team can hardly pay it's own way.

7 BENNY & THE BRONCS ROLL BACK THE YEARS

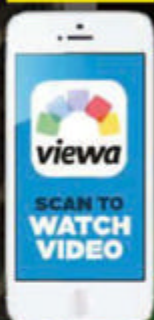

They used to be a better partnership than Batman and Robin, but there's no way Benny will wave a magic wand and return Brisbane to the dominance they enjoyed in the 1990s. Not even close to it. Regardless of what you think of his coaching skills — and some say they're on the wane after his stint at Newcastle — he just doesn't have the players for it. Sam Thaiday, Justin Hodges and Corey Parker have been outstanding for the club, but the cracks are showing and there isn't enough spackles in the form of young talent to fill them in.

Blokes UFC champ Ronda Rousey could

SMASH

CHOC MUNDINE

Yes, he's held world titles and been in with great fighters like Danny Green and Mikkel Kessler, but Choc is way over the hill for a boxer at age 39, and hasn't got a clue about fighting on the ground, which is Ronda's strength. And once someone tells the American hottie what Mundine said about the 9/11 attacks, she'll be beyond motivated to arm-bar him until she hears a loud snap.

RAY RICE

The former Baltimore Ravens NFL star punched out his girlfriend in a lift, then dragged her out of it like she was a bag of garbage. By doing so he became the poster boy for low bastards who think it's OK to hit women. You can be damn sure he wouldn't think it was OK anymore if he tried to last one round with Ronda. She'd make his arm bend in about 17 places.

WAYNE ROONEY

He's ugly enough to pass for a boxer — as proved by the fact he was nicknamed "the assassin-faced baby" when he came into the Premier League aged 16 — but he fights about as well as Stephen Hawking. Just last week a video surfaced of him getting KO'd in a makeshift boxing bout in a kitchen. And that was off a jab. Thrown by another soccer player. His chin's made of fairy floss.

DANA WHITE

The big boss of the UFC looks like a tough mother, and he used to box. Matter of fact, he reckons he used to box so well he could've beaten up former UFC champ Tito Ortiz. But ZOO's still backing Ronda here. Dana's out of shape, spends too much time behind a desk, plus he'd be in awe of the UFC's biggest star. This is a fight he'd lose during the stare-down.

KIRISOME AUA'A

He's another fit, strong NRL player who makes a living out of running into blokes who are even bigger than him. He is also banned indefinitely from playing because last year he was found guilty of domestic violence. We reckon fighting a convicted woman beater would give Ronda enough motivation to overcome the 35kg she's giving away.

BLAKE FERGUSON

At 192cm and 103kg, the Roosters NRL player dwarfs Ronda. Plus he's very athletic, is no stranger to heavy body contact, and thanks to the fact NRL teams use MMA experts to help coach defence, he can grapple. But anyone who saw him box awfully on a Mundine undercard in 2013 knows plenty of women besides Ronda could beat him. Like Sarah Jessica Parker.

FLOYD MAYWEATHER JR

No less a judge of MMA skill than UFC President Dana White recently said of a stoush between Rousey and Floyd: "You take a street fight, Ronda wins that fight and hurts him badly. You do an MMA fight, same result." And how sweet would it be to see the mouthy, flashy, woman-hitting Yank get hammered by a chick. It'd pull more viewers than his fight with Manny Pacquiao.

THE ZLIST

BLU-RAY

COMEDY

WIL ANDERSON: WILUMINATI
[MA15+]

1ST

THE GIST: After performing his Wiluminati material for 11 months over four countries, the Aussie comedian's final show of the tour is staged at the Sydney Opera House in front of a huge crowd.

ZOO SAYS: Much like Rolf Harris, Anderson can rub people up the wrong way. But we've chatted to him before and the dude's a legend. He's a bit nervous and fidgety during the Opera House gig, but it's the bonus show at the Sydney Comedy Store that sees a slightly drunk and more relaxed Anderson in his element.

FANTASY

THE HOBBIT: THE BATTLE OF THE FIVE ARMIES
[M]

1ST

THE GIST: After Bard kills Smaug, Thorin gets dragon sickness and barricades him and the other dwarves in the Lonely Mountain while they search for the Arkenstone. Armies of orcs, elves and dwarves — led by Thorin's fiery ranga cousin Dáin (Billy Connolly) — go to war over the mountain and its treasure. Bilbo tries to talk some sense into Thorin so they can all make it home safely. ZOO SAYS: The final film in the trilogy is basically a 144-minute fight scene, which ain't a bad thing, but the 48 frames-per-second tech makes everything look faker than Doug Bollinger's rug. Still, it wraps the trilogy up nicely, has a rad biff with Azog, and throws in some sad and funny shit for good measure.

FILM

COMEDY

GET HARD
[MA15+]

1ST

THE GIST: When wealthy businessman James King (Will Ferrell) is wrongfully sentenced to 10 years in the can for tax evasion, he asks his friend, Darnell (Kevin Hart) — who he incorrectly assumes has done jail time — for advice on how to survive in the slammer.

ZOO SAYS: The plot is a good set-up for Ferrell and Hart to bring the LOLs while highlighting racial stereotypes. There's tons of chemistry between the two, with Hart playing it straight as Ferrell works his magic. It's not Step Brothers classic, but is in the same league as The Other Guys.

COMEDY/ROMANCE

TOP FIVE
[MA15+]

8TH

THE GIST: Andre Allen (Chris Rock) is a stand-up comedian trying to shake his most famous movie role as Hammy the Bear by doing a serious film. On the promo trail, he's increasingly frustrated by the media's fixation on a Hammy sequel and his pending tabloid wedding to a reality star. But then he hits it off with a hot journo (Rosario Dawson), who helps put his life into perspective. ZOO SAYS: After two duds, Rock has finally written and directed a movie that does justice to his talents. The scene with the hookers in the hotel is as rank as it is funny.

TOUKIDEN: KIWAMI

PS4, PS VITA

7/10

THE GIST: A semi-sequel follow-up to the action-packed, demon-slaughtering game on the PS Vita, Kiwami throws down more of everything: demons, storylines and chapters, as well as more teamwork functions with allies.

ZOO SAYS: One of the few titles to make the PS Vita worthwhile, you should look into treating your portable device with this more complete version. Slaying enormous demons as a wacky little ninja feels pretty badass.

SURVIVAL

THE ASSIGNMENT

PS4, XB1, PS3, PC

THE GIST: This first DLC pack for piss-scary game The Evil Within changes the mood as you now play as babe detective Juli Kidman, Sebastian's partner, in a concurrent story that answers some of the questions about her whereabouts.

ZOO SAYS: Clearly taking some notes from Alien: Isolation, this expansion ditches the guns and forces you into stealth situations filled with sneaking, distracting and hiding. It's fun but there's a bit too much creeping around.

RPG

BLOODBORNE

PS4, PS3, PC

THE GIST: The sinister dudes who brought us the amazing Dark Souls trilogy have served up a new death marathon that's as awesome as it is painful. As a hunter in a ruined gothic city plagued with monsters, it's basically Dark Souls with shotguns and flick-knife polearms. The gameplay is much like its predecessors, but shakes things up with a new time era and rewardingly risky attack-to-survive combat.

ZOO SAYS: Once again, this series leaves other RPGs for dead with another brutally addictive game. It delivers some incredible boss fights and freaky new creatures. Without any shields, combat is much more offensive, but you're limited to dodges and rolls, which sucks for variety. You don't need to be as careful as before, but it's just as tough. You'll crave the self-inflicted torture.

ELECTRO ROCK

THE PRODIGY

THE DAY IS MY ENEMY

7/10

SOUNDS LIKE: After a six-year recording break, the electro-rocking geezers try to reclaim their feisty sound on their sixth album, even as they edge ever closer to their 50s. The title track starts things off promisingly with plenty of the hard-hitting beats and chant-worthy choruses fans are hoping for. First single Nasty follows and is a decent but by-the-numbers Prodigy track. Beyond the Deathray is an interesting, Nine Inch Nails-sounding instrumental.

ZOO SAYS: There's still plenty of fire in their bellies, with Ibiza and Wall of Death particularly vehement, but Get Your Fight On, Rhythm Bomb and Rebel Radio let the team down.

INDIE ROCK

DEATH CAB FOR CUTIE

KINTSUGI

9/10

SOUNDS LIKE: A lot of shit has gone down since Death Cab's last album. Founding guitarist and producer Chris Walla left the band (although he's still on this record), and frontman Ben Gibbard divorced his actress wife Zooey Deschanel. Not surprisingly, their sixth album is brutally honest and sad.

ZOO SAYS: What the next record will be like without Walla is anyone's guess, but for now, just savour the final taste. No Room in Frame is near perfect. If it's a swansong, this is a rip snort!

I call this one the "arse hat"

ELECTRO/R'n'B

DANIEL JOHNS

AERIAL LOVE EP

6/10

SOUNDS LIKE: Silverchair's reclusive, mascara-wearing main man has emerged from his hidey hole to release his first new music in eight years. Expect lots of electro, R'n'B, falsetto and even shades of Prince on the EP's standout track, Preach. ZOO SAYS: If you can get over the disappointment that this isn't about a chick fudding herself with an aerial, and that it isn't rock, Johns' songwriting skill still shines through.

HEAVY ROCK/PROG METAL

CHAOS DIVINE

COLLIDING SKIES

8/10

SOUNDS LIKE: Ten years in, the WA five-piece continue to hone their sound, this time producing a more commercial, less metal style more in line with bands like early Karnivool. The epic prog elements and death growls still appear occasionally, but Colliding Skies is more about tight songs and lush tones.

ZOO SAYS: These local lads are a hardworking and professional bunch worthy of your cashola.

TV

HIPSTERS

SBS 2, TUESDAY,
MARCH 24, 8.30PM

In this six-part series, Samuel Johnson (Evan from The Secret Life of Us) delves into the cultural phenomenon that is/was the hipster. He explores how the once-cool look/lifestyle originated and then morphed into a bearded, quiff-loving, fixed-gear-bike riding laughing stock.

6 THINGS
TO SAY
DOWN
ABOUT...

MH370 CONSPIRACIES

A year on, flight MH370's mystery disappearance is unsolved. What are some of the wilder theories?

1 Russian president Vladimir Putin features heavily. CNN aviation expert Jeff Wise reckons Putin ordered special forces to hijack MH370 and fly it to Kazakhstan. Another theory says Putin's plane, with similar livery to MH370, was the real target

2 The X-Files was wrong: the truth's not out there, it's in YouTube comments, where we discover MH370 landed at the US Pacific base at Diego Garcia, because someone on it had the cure for AIDS

3 Co-pilot Fariq Abdul Hamid was messing around with a chick in the aptly named cockpit while flying — it had happened before — without realising she was a suicidal terrorist who overpowered him and then crashed the plane

4 One theory hinges on 20 employees of Freescale Semiconductor, a company developing military microchips, being on board. Some say China hijacked it to interrogate them, or the US hijacked it to stop secrets falling into the wrong hands

5 Retired US Lt General Thomas McInerney reckons Islamic State have it laid up somewhere quiet before launching it a 9/11-style attack on the US

6 Then there are the reports from Malaysia that multiple console keystrokes were made to alter the plane's course, and that the aircraft avoided detection deliberately. No wreckage has been found

+ Many Iraqis believe the glasses worn by American soldiers have X-ray vision, and therefore can see through women's clothing

+ Bill Gates has been the richest person on the planet for 16 of the last 21 years

Even I have to chase pussy sometimes

+ Most domesticated house cats can run faster than Usain Bolt

+ Among other reasons, North Korean leader Kim Jong-un executed his uncle in 2013 because he disrespected him by not clapping hard enough

+ Brides traditionally stand on the groom's left side at weddings because in the old days, the man would need his right sword hand free in case he needed to defend his woman from would-be suitors

+ A buttload is an actual unit of measurement. Expressed in volume, it's equal to two large casks of liquid, or about 477 litres

+ Six per cent of the people who listen to EDM (electronic dance music) are more than 50 years old

Beauty
